The inaugural exhibition of the International Centre for the Image, PhotoIreland's new home in Dublin's North Docklands.

The centre brings PhotoIreland's projects under one roof, organised around research (an art library), production (artists' studios and a workshop) and exhibition and storage, with a focus on the still and moving image. It grew out of PhotoIreland's work since 2017 towards a museum for the image, and was developed with Kennedy Wilson and the Arts Council of Ireland.

Foreword opened the exhibition space in July 2025 with work by seventeen artists across still and moving image, introducing the centre's curatorial direction.
